Abstract

The Legal Politic of Tourism Villages Management in Bali based on Indigenous Villages is a model that can prosper the Indigenous people of Bali. The traditional village in Bali is a religious social organization that manages the assets of indigenous peoples and has genuine autonomy. Traditional villages as a value of local wisdom have an important role in protecting cultural resource assets from aspects of Indonesian national law and the ideals of the Pancasila law. This study aims to find the value of local wisdom in the Balinese tourist village and the correlation of national law with the ideals of the Pancasila law. In the management of tourism villages the role of prajurit (the leader) of traditional village in Bali is very important and researchers find various models of village-based tourism village management with the division of income based on the creativity and innovation of indigenous peoples based on the potential of tourism villages. Creative economy based on indigenous villages can be collaborated with district government policy to build sustainable tourism villages.

Introduction

The Republic of Indonesia has a state ideology, a state foundation, and a legal basis of Pancasila (Petrus CK L Bello, 2013) as well as a pillar of "unity in diversity" legal pluralism (state law and customary law), culture, customs, religion, ethnicity, which can contribute to the development of tourism which is unique to the stereotype uniqueness of the Indonesian and its culture. Bali as a world tourist destination has a value of local wisdom, namely traditional villages that can maintain Hinduism, customs, culture as a bastion of Balinese civilization. In the Law of the Republic of Indonesia Number 10 of 2009 concerning tourism, that the wealth of geographical location, nature, flora and fauna, ancient relics, historical relics, arts, culture is a resource and capital to increase the prosperity and welfare of Indonesian people

Local uniqueness, Indonesian culture and indigenous law community units are recognized, protected by the state stipulated in the 1945 constitution. The State recognizes and respects preferential or special Regional Government units that are regulated by the Law (1945 Constitution, Article 188, paragraph (1)). State recognizes and respects the units of indigenous law communities and their traditional rights as long as they are still alive and in accordance with the development of the community and the principles of the unitary state of the Republic of Indonesia, which are regulated in the Law (1945 Constitution, Article 188, paragraph (2)). Cultural identity and traditional people's rights are respected in accordance with the development of time and civilization (1945 Constitution, Article 28, paragraph (3)).
